PRICE OF PRESCRIPTIONS IN VA. BELOW AVERAGE

Although anyone who has recently been sick can tell you that the price of prescriptions sometimes seems to be enough to give you a relapse, Virginians paid 14% less for their medicine last year than the national average, according to a survey conducted by the Medical College of Virginia School of Pharmacy.

The average prescription in Virginia last year cost $1.92, while the average for the entire country was $2.19.

The survey also revealed that 72% of the prescriptions were priced at $2.00 or less, and the most frequent price was -1.25.

Despite the frequently heard complaints about the high priced miracle drugs, only 3.7% were priced at $5.00 or more. And it was this expensive 3.7% which was the best bargain, according to J. Curtis Nottingham, Secretary of the Virginia Pharmaceutical Association.

Medicines formerly used in lobar pneumonia cost only a dollar or two, Nottingham said, but one of three patients died. Those who survived spent two weeks in a hospital and four to eight weeks in bed. Often the total bill was as much as $1,000.00. Today, with the new "expensive drugs," not available ten years ago at any price, the patient usually recovers in a week or ten days. The average cost of the antibiotics is $15.00 to $30.00, and more important, the chance for survival is 25 to 1.

"Certainly the 'miracle drugs' are expensive compared to an aspirin tablet, but with the efficacy to reduce the death rate from pneumonia 61% from 1937 to 1949; from rheumatic fever, 43%; cerebrospinal miningitis, 70%; tonsillitis and pharyngitis, 88%; diseases of the ear and mastoid, 85%; septicima, 66% enteritis and diarrhea, 16%; appendicitis, 76%, a handful of expensive pills becomes the best bargain in the family budget," Nottingham said. "Buying longer, better health, and more citizen happiness is fairly cheap in a store."

These miracle drugs which shortened the length of illness increased its seriousness, and lengthened the life span from 44 years in 1900 to 70, are the result of research by pharmaceutical manufacturers.

Hundreds of new chemical compounds often have to be developed in order to find one with the qualities, Nottingham said. The many time-consuming tests have to be conducted to insure their effectiveness and safety. The cost of this research must be passed to the customer.

Nottingham said also that the price of new drugs come down rapidly as soon as mass production and the economy of synthesis makes it possible. For example, the cost of cortisone has been reduced 40% in the last four years, penicillin now costs only 10% of its original price, and insulin, which the consumer -3.60 per 10 cc vial of 40 units strength in 1925 now sells for $1.26, a reduction of 65%.

He also pointed out that while the average person spent $155.00 in 1952 for alcoholic beverages, $80.00 for tobacco, and $18.00 for admission to spectator sports, he spent only $10.00 for drug preparations to keep well.

First Conquest

Lesson for November 7, 1954

ALLAN TROUT writes: "I started on the journey of life with the full intention to conquer the world . . . But 32 years of experience have taught me, among other things, that the only world I had a chance to conquer was my own . . . Mr. Foreman may be exaggerating a bit, but there is exaggeration in the diction of the sad fact that so many people today do not realize the simple fact: that it is up to hope to conquer the world if you do not first conquer self. This is a truth not discovered first in the 20th century; centuries before Christ there were men who knew it.

Dr. Foreman

Control Is Not Repression

Many persons do not like even the notion of self-control because the term sounds harsh, negative, cold and austere. The word calls up a grim-faced Puritan idea that anything pleasant must be sinful. (The real Puritans were a pretty jolly lot, as a matter of fact! But self-control, which the Proverbs (and most of the Bible too) speak, is not mere no-saying to yourself. There is, to be sure, a NO! in self-control. But when you step on a car, you steer it because you are going somewhere. You say NO to the ditch, No to the pedestrian, No to the passing trucks, for a reason. You say NO to keep going. Steering is a plan and going off the pavement, or it is keeping moving in the direction of where you want to go. There may be a dozen different directions the car might go if you removed your hands from the wheel. What you are doing is to keep on in the one direction. Human self-control is of that sort of thing. You are more than one self, you have in you. Some of them are good, some bad. The question simply is: Which one of your selves is going to be the wheel?

Proverbs

The Proverbs point out some of the flaws in human make-up and character is the most likable or weak. One of the commonly mentioned break-down is the tongue. Talking is so easy and talking without thinking is very easy. As James says, it is easier to tame wild animals than to tame the tongue; indeed, no man has ever quite done it. And the trouble can be caused by carelessly, thoughtless or mean talk. It takes time to do a thing; it calls for a little thought. One has time to think before he does, to decide not to do it. But when a man thing takes no time at all, it just slips out it a moment there is no time to think about, the friendship is broken, the day is spoiled. Another moment where it is hard to get hold of ourselves is the emotion. The book of Proverbs mentions jealousy and often the emotion of anger. The angry heart and words are back of the angry deed. Before the insult that leads to fight, there is the simmering in the mind that thinks of the insult. And anger leads to bitter brawls and even murder.

Made It Harder?

There were no such thing as "drinker" or any kind of alcoholic beverages, if everybody could hold sober all the time. We would have a hard enough time getting control of themselves. The case of a preacher is hard enough, just as much as the case of a truck-driver. The case of a lady may show itself differently from the temper of a man in the marines, but it's a matter of self-control and can do quite as much harm. But the whole matter of self-control is made more difficult by the use of liquor. Proverbs know this, and say that if you were a general, you should not dope your army with a serum that would make them dull and sick. You would want them at their top form for action. So if you are interested in controlling yourself, you will decide, you are working against yourself, if you make it easier by liquor-drinking. If it is always the wrong thing when it is twice as easy to slip and the mind is clouded by

MIGRATORY GAME BIRD HUNTING IN VIRGINIA

Richmond, Va.- It's time for hunting clapper rail in the gold - brown marshes of the Eastern Shore . . for spotting a good dove stand in a picked Virginia cornfield . . and not too soon to start thinking about the whistle of the woodcock in the Old Dominion's woods . . or to start making arrangements for that duck hunting trip for November, December or January, according to the Virginia Travel Council.

Good news for duck hunters! The dun gray speedsters gave hunters plenty of fast sport during the first half of the split season in September and prospects are even better for the second half of the season which goes out November 4.

The bag limit on doves is 8 a day and 8 in possession. Hunting hours are from 12 noon until sunset each day.

The season on clapper rail, gallinules and sora came in September 11 and will last until November 19. The bag limit on rail and gallinules is 15 a day in the aggregate of rails and gallinules, 30 in possession after the first day, and the hunting hours are from a half hour before sunrise until sunset each day.

Though sora hunting has been legal since September 11, not much hunting has been done yet. Veteran marsh hunters like to wait a few weeks for the birds to fatten up after their migrations.

Any chilly morning after November 12 you will find Virginia hunters in their duck blinds along the bays and rivers of the Commonwealth, waiting for the ducks, geese and other waterfowl that come down the Atlantic flyway in the fall. Meanwhile, while you are getting your gear ready, it might be a good idea to send a postcard to the Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries Box 1642, Richmond 13, Va., asking for the regulations on waterfowl blinds as well as the hunting laws.

The season on ducks, geese and coot will extend from November 12 until January 10 and that for brant will be December 13 - January 10. The bag limit for ducks will be 4 a day (of which one may be a wood duck), 8 in possession after the first day (2 of which may be wood ducks). For Canada geese, the limit is 2 a day and 4 in possession after the first day; for coot, 10 a day and 10 in possession; for brant, 6 a day and 6 in possession.

You must be alert and keen-sighted to see the woodcock with its long sensitive bill, large eyes set far back and its dark camouflage plumage in the autumn woods. But you have been missing a lot if you have not heard it whistle as it takes flight or tasted its tender, well flavored flesh after a successful day's hunting. Because it is so delicious, the woodcock and its near relative the Jacksnipe (Wilson's snipe) are not so numerous now because they tempted ruthless markethunting in the past. However, in Virginia, hunters still get a chance to go out after them beginning November 20.

The season on woodcock will last until December 29, with a bag limit of 4 a day and 8 in possession after the first day. The season on Jacksnipe closes December 4, with an 8 a day limit and 8 in possession.

SQUIRRELS CAN BE SHOCKED TOO

Squirrels apparently are subject to nervous disorders—just like humans.

At any rate, that's the conclusion of researchers at the VPI Cooperative Wildlife Research Center. They report that several squirrels trapped during a census count have died of shock.

It would seem that the nervousness caused by the shock of being caught in a live trap is enough to cause death. In a live trap the squirrels are not mutilated in any way. They simply enter the trap and there they are.

The same trouble has been observed in some species of northern rabbits. One strange thing about it is that the deaths by shock seem to occur periodically. Some years it happens. Some years it doesn't.

The trapping is being done to compute the population of squirrels on a 17-acre woodlot on the VPI farm. When the population is estimated, the researchers propose to remove about 40% of the squirrels from one area but not from the other, the purpose being to gauge the effect of hunting on populations and eventually arrive at better wildlife management practices.

The highest count so far was in 1953 when there were 9.3 squirrels per acre. The count for 1954 has not been completed.

Needless to say, when squirrels die of shock in the trap it throws awry the statistical formulas used to compute populations. They simply aren't supposed to do that.

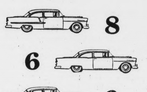
What's new with Chevrolet? everything!

Wonderful new Glide-Ride Front Suspension

New spherical joints flex freely to cushion all road shocks. You glide over the bumps! New Anti-Dive Braking Control, exclusive with Chevrolet, assures "heads up" stops.



Great new V8—two new 6's

New "Turbo-Fire V8" delivers 162 h.p. with an ultra-high compression ratio of 8 to 1. Two new 6's, too—the new "Blue-Flame 136" with Powerglide (optional at extra cost) and the new "Blue-Flame 123."

And look what you see from the driver's seat

New Sweep-Sight Windshield curves around to vertical corner pillars, giving you a wide, full view of the road ahead. And you can see all four fenders from the driver's seat!

New Outrigger Rear Springs

Rear springs are longer—and they're attached at the outside of the frame. This means they're spaced wider apart, outrigger-fashion, to give you greater stability in cornering.

Easier steering, stopping, clutching

The new Chevrolet steers with ball-bearing ease, thanks to new friction-cutting Ball-Race Steering. New Swing-Type Brake and Clutch Pedals pivot at the top, swing downward with a light pressure of your toe.

A ventilating system that really works

Chevrolet's new High-Level Ventilating System takes in air at hood-high level, away from road heat, fumes and dust.

Three drives, including Overdrive

Powerglide—with the new V8 or the new "Blue-Flame 136." New Overdrive with the new V8 or the new "Blue-Flame 123." (Powerglide and Overdrive are extra-cost options.) New standard transmission, too!

Tubeless tires as standard equipment

You get this great tire advance at no extra cost! Proved tubeless tires give you greater protection against a blowout . . . deflate more slowly when punctured.

Even Air Conditioning, if you wish

Air is heated or cooled by a single highly efficient unit that requires no trunk space! (V8 models only.) It's just one of the wonderful extra-cost options Chevrolet offers!

The Bel Air 4-Door Sedan—one of 14 new Fisher Body beauties in three new series

Chevrolet and General Motors have started something—a whole new age of low-cost motoring—by taking a whole new look at the low-cost car. Here are new ideas, young ideas . . . and some of tomorrow's ideas, too! And they're all rolled up in the most glamorous package that ever wore anything like a Chevrolet price tag!

This is the car that began with a great idea—the idea that a low-priced car could be built that would have the style, the performance, the comfort and convenience features, and the fine quality "feel" of high-priced cars.

Lots of car buyers have wished for such a car. Lots of automotive engineers have dreamed about it. But there were plenty of reasons why it couldn't be done.

Then Chevrolet and General Motors designed and built a car to fit the dream—the Motoramic Chevrolet!

Come in and see how the Motoramic Chevrolet for '55 is far more than a completely new car. It's a whole new idea about cars!

Come in and meet the motoramic Chevrolet
